St Marys Church Church Lane Footpath Abbotts Ann Andover Hampshire SP11 7BH	LB1	20/12/1960	403359	Parish Church. 1716. Brick, with stone dressings, and a slate roof. The building replaces an earlier church, and was paid for by the estate owner Thomas "Diamond" Pitt, a former governor of Madras and father of the Earl of Chatham. The structure is of classical form, with symmetrical or regular elevations, with an aisleless nave of 4 bays, a chancel, west tower incorporating the entrance, and a small Victoria vestry south of the chancel. The walls are of brickwork in Flemish bond with blue headers, and Bath stone features; weathered coping to the parapet, moulded cornice, corner pilasters, moulded plinths: plain architraves to the openings, round-headed windows and doorways with Keystones. The tower has 3 stages, separated by moulded stone bands, the top state has a cambered head to the opening, the middle stage has a small oval window (clock face on the west) above a window with a cambered head, and the lower stage has a recessed brick panel above an opening: the west side has the arched doorway, with moulded impost, plain pilasters and arched cornice: the south side has a rectangular (staircase) projection with a small window above a tiny doorway. The easternmost group of windows (chancel and 2 eastern bays of the nave) have been filled (C19) with traceried coupled lights, and the parapet of the tower is crenellated, with corner Gothic pinnacles. Inside, the simple classical appearance is enhanced by oak panelling, in the sanctuary and as a dado to the rest of the chancel and to the nave: the pews have doors and include a family pew: the pulpit is a panelled octagon. There are communion rails and wood octagonal font of baluster form, with stoneware bowl and decorative wooden cover. A gallery occupies the west bay of the nave, with panelled front, 2 Tuscan columns, with pilasters against the side walls: 2 panels are lettered (one about a bequest of 1728, the other about the church rebuilding of 1716). There are wall monuments of the late C18 and ear	ABBOTTS ANN

Aisleless cruciform church with a central tower; the north transept and nave were virtually rebuilt in 1866 when the north vestry (appearing as a smaller north transept from the chancel), organ aisle and north porch were built new, and the nave extended by one bay to accommodate the font. The building is rendered, with flint walls for the work of 1866, with stone dressings, the roof being tiled. The windows are (except for the vestry) coupled lights with cusped heads supporting flamboyant roundels or ogee shaped trefoils (reproduced in the nave), with a 3 light east window and a high circular window in the west gable. The tower has a stone parapet, with a coved base decorated with heads, and small coupled lights to the bell stage; there are diagonal buttresses to the east wall. Within, the pointed and chamfered arches of the crossing are prominent, the nave and transepts of plain (restoration) appearance; the chancel is enriched by the traceried windows, a piscina, stepped sedilia of 3 ogee arches, and a floor covered by tomb slabs (including a finely-lettered group of 5 in the sanctuary, of late C17 early C18). There are several wall monuments in the chancel with small slate slabs of 1653 and 1636, and larger classical monuments of 1723, 1753 and 1779, and in the north transept a classical monument of 1807. The font is an elaborate 'Perpendicular' design of 1865 with a wood cover. A particular treasure (in a glazed frame) is a C14 alabaster carving (found at nearby East Cholderton) of a St. John's Head, with an ornamental canopy and head flanked by the small figures of St. Margaret, St. Katherine, St. Peter, S. William of York, with a Resurrection at the base.	AMPORT

Brick walls with stone dressings, and a steep slate roof. The design resembles the English style of c1600, the elevations being regular but not symmetrical; the tall house-block is of 2 storeys with attic, and the extensive service wing of 1 storey and attic, in each case the upper floors have semi-dormer windows. The south (garden) front is symmetrical, with an added bay at the east side, of 1.3.1:1 windows. The centre part has ½ dormers with gables, and there are attic windows in the side gables: beneath each gable is a 2-storeyed splayed bay. Walls of yellow brickwork in English bond with flush Bath stone dressings: the gables have small finials, with a stepped verge at each foot containing a finial, 2nd floor stone band (of classical cornice), 1st floor band (of a Gothic drip-mould), flush quoins, chamfered reveals, mullions and transoms, plinth: open strapwork at the top of the bays. Casements, 3 French windows in the middle. The east (entrance) elevation has a gable to the south side and a narrow bay of 4 storeys set back at the north side (also gabled): 1.3.1 windows. The details are similar, and at the south side there is a porch, in a Tuscan Order, of 2 columns 2 pilasters, an arched entrance and ½ glazed door, the columns being enriched at top and bottom by strapwork. The service block comprises ranges round a courtyard, with a link to the house; the elevation treatment is similar but without ornamentation. Inside the building there is a long gallery behind the staterooms, lined with "Jacobean" panelling, and having a fireplace with a classical overmantel: opposite is a flight of stairs in the same style and at each ½-landing a large window formed of many lights, each containing painted escutcheons (of the Paulet family): the gallery has a set of early C19 paintings of birds. Andover War Memorial Andover Hampshire SP10 1NE	LB2	29/06/2011	1402345	War Memorial, c1920. The War Memorial in the Garden of Remembrance, St Mary's Churchyard, Andover is designated at Grade II for the following principal reasons: English Heritage Advice Report 05 July 2011 * Architectural Interest: a well-crafted stone memorial by Herbert Cowley * Historic Interest: strong cultural and historical significance, both locally and nationally, and an eloquent witness to the impact of tragic world events on this community HistoryThe memorial was unveiled on 20 May 1920 by the Lord Lieutenant of Hampshire Major-General JEB Seeley. It was designed by the architect Herbert Cowley and constructed by Harry Page at the Angel Yard works in Andover. The memorial bears the names of 213 men who fell in the Great War and, unusually, the date reads 1914-1920. This reflects the service of the Hampshire Regiment in Murmansk in Russia after the official end of the First World War, where they saw action with anti-Bolshevik forces. Initially, in 1919, the Municipal Council proposed to commemorate the Fallen of the First World War in the same manner as those who served in the Boer War – with a memorial tablet inside the Guildhall. Plans for a more public monument emerged soon after, however, and this was paid for by public subscription. The War Memorial was originally located in Andover High Street, outside the courtyard of the Guildhall, and was moved to its present site in St Mary's churchyard in 1956. DetailsThe stone cenotaph sits on a hexagonal base and is square on plan. It has a rusticated base, Tuscan corner pilasters, a dentil cornice and a stepped top. Each face of the monument is inscribed with the names of the Fallen with a wreath carved in relief above. The principal inscription reads, in capital letters: To honour / the memory / of those / men of Andover / who fell / in / the Great War / 1914-1920. The frieze is inscribed on all four sides, also in capitals: Rest in peace / our glorious dead / but their name / liveth for evermore.	ANDOVER TOWN (ST MARYS) map shows that it has taken on its present appearance with a further addition, possibly an outshot, now gone, at the west end. It was converted into a cottage in the 1940s or 1950s.

REASON FOR DESIGNATION:

Manor Barn Cottage is designated at Grade II for the following principal reasons:

- The original fabric of the building including the cob, brick and flint walls and the timber roof structure are intact.
- The cob and timber building is a good example of late C17 or early C18 agricultural building and retains its agricultural appearance.
- The cottage has good group value with listed buildings to the south and east.

A late C17 or early C18 agricultural building of cob, flint and brick and weatherboarding with a long straw thatched roof and flush wrap over the ridge. Converted to a cottage in the mid-C20.

EXTERIOR:

There are two aspects to the building; the earlier and larger cob section with hayloft at the east end and the lower recessed addition of brick and flint which abuts it at the west. The building is single storey with a loft; it is linear in form, displaying its origin as an agricultural building. The south elevation is of flint with red brick facings. The windows on this elevation are later insertions. The north elevation is rendered. The east end elevation is of flint and brick, with weatherboarding above the modern panel coach doors and at the loft hatch. The west addition is of flint with brick facing.

INTERIOR:

The interior of the building is modern, divided into rooms by cement block and plasterboard partitions. Doors are modern and casement windows are mid C20.

The roof structure is intact, displaying splayed queen trusses with clasped purlins, principle rafters (all hand-cut timber), pole common ratters and ridge pole. The galleried hayloft to the east has a lathe and wattle gallery wall and plank floor supported by pole joists. The ground floor here is now a garage using brick, flint and cement block walls.

St Peters Church Biddesden Bottom Road Appleshaw Andover Hampshire SP10 9BH	LB2	20/12/1960	140463	Parish church. Rebuilt on an old site in 1830, using a grant from the 'incorporated society for promoting the enlargement building and repairing of churches', architect T.M. Shurmer. Rendered walls and slate roof. Of a plain Gothic style, a cruciform aisleless plan, most of the western arm (with thicker walls) being raised as a tower; west porch. The very plain exterior has pointed coupled windows (triple at the east and west ends) in the gables, chancel and tower, with small windows placed high just east of the tower. The tower has a parapet, and diagonal stepped buttresses, ending at the top as square piers, crowned by slender pyramid finials. The porch has a 4-centred arch: the side windows to the transepts are 2 (north) and 3 (south) light casements of domestic scale. The interior appears as a long narrow nave/chancel, broken in the centre by segmental-pointed arches of the transepts, and with a flat segmental plaster vault, stopped at the west by a tower arch. At this point the ceiling rises inside the tower, to provide space for the (virtually hidden) gallery. The north transept has a pointed plaster ceiling and the south transept (slightly narrower on plan) a semi-circular plaster vault. The south transept serves as a vestry, with a doorway beneath the gable window. There are wall monuments of 1785, 1789, 1807 and 1835, and a Royal Coat of Arms of William IV, of 1831. There is a Victorian octagonal font, but in the porch what appears to be the original font, comprising a very slender circular stone pillar, on a square base, with a vase top, now accommodating a shallow metal dish.	APPLESHAW

All Saints Church Cocum Road Barton Stacey Winchester Hampshire SO21 3RT	LB2S	20/12/1960	139550	Parish church. C12, C13, C15, C16 and restoration of 1877. Originally a Norman 2-cell church, given north and south aisles circa 1180, with 2 arches supported by round pillars, which remain. Extensions eastward in the C13 continued the arcade, with 2 octagonal columns on each side, ending in a short chancel. The eastern unit of the arcade opens onto transepts, with arches separating them from the aisles, supporting another (or chancel) arch across the nave. Tiled roof. Flint walls with stone dressing; lancets and Perpendicular windows, some corner buttresses. The chief feature is a western tower of circa 1610 (set into the end of the nave) of Perpendicular style, with castellated parapet, octagonal stair turret incorporated within one of 2 massive diagonal buttresses. South porch of the last period. Within, there are several wall monuments of the early C19, and floor slabs of the late C18, a Purbeck font of the 2nd period, having a square bowl, with arcade sides, resting on a central drum and 4 columns, medieval encaustic tiles in the sanctuary, a C17 alter table with carved (Flemish) figure, and Prescription boards (in the tower). Red brick, partly in Flemish Bond, partly in header bond; hipped plain clay tiled roofs using bonnets to hips; brick chimney stacks, the westernmost rendered. Double roof plan, set at right angles to road and some distance from it; main facade faces south. Two storeys with attic, 4 bays. West end the earlier, featuring small brick band course and obvious join with the C18 remainder; windows of cast iron lattice pattern with margins, C19 inserts, 2- and 3-lights, with no window upper bay 2; both bay 1 windows and the remainder at first floor level have flat half-brick shoulder arches, the remaining ground floor windows have slightly segmental arches which were intended to serve earlier, narrower windows: to bay 3 a 6-flush-panel entrance door set in late C19 brick and glazed porch with tiled roof, with timber pilasters remaining of an earlier door surround: between bays 1/2 and 3/4 are small lead-flat roofed dormer windows with slated cheeks, the single lights diamond-paned. West elevation ivy covered; outbuildings this end, some with slated lean-to with pitched-roof porch, and two 2-light small-pane steel casements to first floor. Interior mostly of late C19 and early C20 character: curved beam over fireplace (blocked) at east end; attic has one early partition, and roof frame has collar trusses with clasped purlins. The site formed one of the boundaries to Michelmersh Manor as early as 985 AD, when it was known as "feora burnan" - hence Fairbournes - and fragments of a mediaeval building in the barn (q.v.) suggest an earlier building of some significance on the site. these have later greenhouses or lean-tos attached which are not of special interest.

INTERIOR: The plan of the cottages (except No.1) is of three rooms on the ground floor (front parlour with dining room and kitchen to rear) and two bedrooms on the first floor. Mid –C20 alterations include to No.2 a rear bathroom and to No.6 the dividing wall has been removed. No.1 has four original rooms on the ground floor with a 1983 additions at the rear. The first floor here also has a bathroom and a further two bedrooms in the eaves. Of the three interiors seen, the original plan of the cottages was visible on Nos. 1 and 2. No 1 has some original fixtures and fittings including the staircase, most interior doors, picture rails and skirting boards, some fireplace surrounds and window furniture. There is a rear door panelled with glass displaying lattice decoration, the scalloped string and curve of the ceiling on the staircase, angled ceiling in the bathroom and exposed beams in the front dormer. No. 2 has an original staircase, some interior doors, fire place surrounds, picture rails and skirting boards. The interior of No. 6 has been much changed and few original features remain.

HISTORY: These cottages, relatively modest in nature, are attributed to the architect WD Caroe in 1893 for his patron Edward Silva to house workers on his Testcombe Estate. The occupants shown in the 1901 census were general workers on the estate such as a washerwoman, labourer and seamstress. The exception was No.1 at the west end of the row, which is a more elaborate three storey building and which was occupied by a retired schoolteacher, a school mistress and three foster children.

REASONS FOR DESIGNATION:

The terrace, Nos. 1-6 Room Cottages, Chilbolton, Hampshire is designated at Grade II for the following principal reasons:

- This terrace of rural workers' cottages is attributed to the significant Edwardian architect WD Caroe and as such is a rare surviving example of his more modest domestic work, forming a notable part of the village where other buildings by Caroe survive
- It is of special interest as a planned group of cottages in

			Arts and Crafts tradition introduced into a village with a large number of listed vernacular buildings nearby; <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Special architectural interest as a late-C19 Queen Anne style purpose-built terrace with an imaginatively designed taller end house, all of good materials and well sited on the street.

Also at the rear are back-to-back outhouses with hipped roofs which once housed toilets; some of these have later greenhouses or lean-tos attached which are not of special interest. INTERIOR: The plan of the cottages (except No.1) is of three rooms on the ground floor (front parlour with dining room and kitchen to rear) and two bedrooms on the first floor. Mid -C20 alterations include to No.2 a rear bathroom and to No.6 the dividing wall has been removed. No.1 has four original rooms on the ground floor with a 1983 additions at the rear. The first floor here also has a bathroom and a further two bedrooms in the eaves. Of the three interiors seen, the original plan of the cottages was visible on Nos. 1 and 2. No 1 has some original fixtures and fittings including the staircase, most interior doors, picture rails and skirting boards, some fireplace surrounds and window furniture. There is a rear door panelled with glass displaying lattice decoration, the scalloped string and curve of the ceiling on the staircase, angled ceiling in the bathroom and exposed beams in the front dormer. No. 2 has an original staircase, some interior doors, fire place surrounds, picture rails and skirting boards. The interior of No. 6 has been much changed and few original features remain.	CHILBOLTON

				SOURCES: Jennifer M Freeman, "WD Caroe: his architectural achievement", Manchester University Press (1990) REASONS FOR DESIGNATION: The terrace, Nos. 1-6 Room Cottages, Chilbolton, Hampshire is designated at Grade II for the following principal reasons: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • This terrace of rural workers' cottages is attributed to the significant Edwardian architect WD Caroe and as such is a rare surviving example of his more modest domestic work, forming a notable part of the village where other buildings by Caroe survive • It is of special interest as a planned group of cottages in Arts and Crafts tradition introduced into a village with a large number of listed vernacular buildings nearby; • Special architectural interest as a late-C19 Queen Anne style purpose-built terrace with an imaginatively designed taller end house, all of good materials and well sited on the street.

Norman have now represented by arcading of 3 bays on the south side (with C13 pointed arches with dog-tooth ornament resting on scalloped caps) set at the east end against a massive rectangular support (with a wider arch beyond in the position of the first chancel). These are 3 late Norman bays on the north side of the nave with moulded caps and round columns. The chancel is C13, with coupled lancets. The aisle walls and windows, of coupled cusped lights, are C15, the south side being a widening of the earlier aisle and absorbing A C13 south transept, built originally with the chancel. The tower at the west end is of the mid C14. Vestry of the mid C19 with later northward extension and late C19 with later northward extension, and late C19 south porch. The exterior has a single ridge to the tile roof, another ridged roof above the north aisle, and a lead sloping roof to the south aisle; the walls are of flint with stone dressings. The tower of 2 stages is of ashlar, with parapet mouldings, set-off moulding to the middle band and a plinth, with small ogee openings (coupled as a west window), and there is a shingled broach spire. Tiled and gabled porch on an open timber-frame on a stone wall. The front is C12, being a Purbeck square top with arcaded sides, on a central drum, with 4 corner shafts moulded top and bottom. There are several wall monuments of the early C19, moulded top and bottom. There are several wall monuments of the early C19, three C18 paintings of religious subjects, and Prescription boards. On either side of the north aisle (former) east window are moulded canopies and brackets for statuary, and the east side capital of the eastern columns on the north side of the nave has carved heads of the mediaeval period. The ceiling to the chancel has arch-braced collars, and the nave has King-post trusses.	GOODWORTH CLATFORD

Courtyard plan, with aisled 6-bay barn forming right (north-east) side, shelter sheds forming rear and left sides, and wall across front. Barn: north-east elevation: cart-entry to bay 4 has board double door and rises above eaves under hipped roof; left bay has bead-moulded board double door; hipped roof. Yard elevation: opposing cart-entry with board doors; at right end board door under segmental header brick arch. South-east gable has raked buttresses. Yard wall is approx. 2 metres high having domed brick coping and entrances at centre and on right. Shelter sheds are open-fronted with wooden posts on chamfered padstones, the original posts square with triangular-stopped chamfered arrises; some replacement posts; hipped roof. Interior: barn: jowelled arcade posts rise from brick walls projecting from walls and are braced to wall plate, arcade plate, and tie beams; curved queen strut roof trusses; butt purlins; long straight wind braces; old rafters; plank ridge piece. Original partition dividing off end bay has brick and flint plinth wall supporting weather-boarded timber-framed superstructure. Cart-entry jamb posts have slotted base-posts (to receive planks to partly block entrances when threshing). The arcade posts at the cart-entries have incised graffiti the earliest dates being in the 1820s. Shelter sheds; King-post roof trusses with raked struts, the king-posts bolted on to tie-beams; clasped purlins; plank ridge pieces, the rear walls have timber plates, possibly used to support mangers. The buildings were in a dilapidated state at time of inspection. The 1808 tithe map shows the existing enclosure within which the yard is located; it does not appear on the 1735 tithe map.	GOODWORTH CLATFORD

Aisleless nave and chancel, west tower and south porch. The nave is Norman with an original window, some lancets and a traceried (south) light of the mid C19; the chancel is C13 (slightly-wider than the nave) with 2 lancets on the north side and triple lancets at the east end; the tower is C13 with C15 diagonal buttresses; the porch is 1738 restored mid C19. Plain tile roof, walls of flint (with some stone rubble), coursed, knapped and squared to the chancel, with stone dressings. The tower has a small brick parapet and small corner pinnacles. The porch, with a simple Norman doorway within, has a sundial above the entrance, dated 1784. Within, the notable feature is the presence of stained glass (with brilliant reds and blues) rescued from Salisbury cathedral by William Benson Earle in 1787 and given to the church. The front is a plain Norman tub. The west wall of the nave has 4 painted prescription boards (with arched tops) and a bequest board. A small wrought-iron bracket fixed to the wall near the pulpit once held the hourglass (for timing the sermon). In front of the altar rail is a double row of 60 medieval inlaid tiles.	GRATELEY

War Memorial Longstock Road LONGSTOCK	LB2	15/04/2010	505627	War memorial of ashlar stone blocks erected in 1919 which was designed by the architect Thomas D Atkinson (1864-1948) of Cambridge and Winchester. DESCRIPTION: The war memorial consists of a two-step square calvary on which is a square socket stone, all built of ashlar blocks. Above this is a four-sided tapered stone column surmounted by a Patee cross encircled with a wreath of leaved and flowers. On the front, eastern side of the socket is a dedication to the men of the parish who served and fell in the Great War in seriphed capitals which reads: 'IN REMEMBRANCE / OF THE MEN OF / LONGSTOCK / WHO SERVED THEIR / COUNTRY AS SAILORS / & SOLDIERS IN THE / WAR OF 1914-1919'. Under this on the top step of the calvary is the dedication, 'NOBLY THEY DID THEIR DUTY'. Below this on the bottom step of the calvary are the names of those who fell in the 1939-1945 war.	LONGSTOCK

				On the rear of the socket stone is a dedication: 'THESE REST IN / PEACE'. On the other two sides of the socket stone are the names of the men who fell in the First World War. HISTORY: The memorial which was designed by the architect Thomas D Atkinson of Cambridge and Winchester (1864-1948) was built in 1919 by the firm of Blackwell's. The firm of Blackwell and Moody cleaned and re-cut the names in 2008. It commemorates those fallen in both World Wars. REASONS FOR DESIGNATION: The War Memorial at Longstock is designed at Grade II for the following principal reasons: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • A simple yet elegant architect-designed memorial of good quality craftsmanship, materials and design; • The fallen of both the Great War and the Second World War are included, and it is an eloquent witness to the impact of tragic world events on this community; • It occupies a visually distinctive position in the village, it is within the conservation area and is near to a number of listed buildings.

Brick arch with stone dressings, plain tile roofs. Clutton's work Jacobean, Braddells Edwardian version of same. Entrance front is symmetrical with end and central Dutch gables. In centre 2 storey projecting porch has early C20 stone Jacobean doorway with cartouche over, 4 stone steps below, 4-light mullioned window over rand low parapet. End bays have large 2-storey bows, with 4-light mullion and transomed window. Bays between have 4-light mullioned window with similar 3-light window over 3-light mullioned windows in gables. Garden front is similar with rectangular 2-storey bow in centre, and canted bays at each end, with balustraded parapet. At ends and over centre in middle of building chimneys with triple moulded brick stacks. At one end, on garden front, service range remodelled early C20 with sunken garden in front, in enclosed area between gable of house and projecting wing on service range. That gable of house and service range are all that remains of 1863 house, in High Victorian Gothic, with round tower on junction with service range. On entrance side at other end C19 and C20 5 bay orangery with brick pilasters and cornice, stone arches. Under centre arch aedicule of rubbed brick and terracotta. Inside, behind porch is hall, still apparently with Steven's ceiling and grey marble fireplace doorcases and panelling early C20. To L is staircase, said to be Stevens, but more English Baroque, and Steven's ceiling over. Steven's ceilings Italian Renaissance, designs in V &A, coffered and painted. Along R end chapel with more Jacobean than Italian ceiling, possibly Steven's and moved from dining room which lies behind staircase. Remainder of interior late C19 and early C20, except study in service range, partly in tower with Jacobean plaster by Collmann. Country Life; 1930; p 176-83. A rectangular block with a central turret, and an arcade (early C19) of Tudor style on the south front, of five bays (centre higher), with cambered arches, above which the spandrels have inset crosses, and there is a castellated parapet. At each side the arcade ends against forward wings, of two storeys two windows, with half-hipped gables. The main feature is a tall open octagonal turret, with dome, Corinthian colonnade, on a square base which is tile-hung. Mullion and transom windows (blank to the upper part of the wings). Central carriage entrance is also blocked.	NURSLING AND ROWNHAMS

Cruciform church with north vestry and south porch, the south transept being raised as a tower. West country limestone with Bath stone dressings; cill bands, plinth, stepped buttresses: traceried couled lights (three at the east and four at the west). Steep slate roof. The tower has two stages, a staircase turret, and an octagonal spire. The interior has original furnishings. Of special interest is a series of medallions of Flemish stained glass, inserted into the glazing of the windows in the form of circles, ovals, rectangles with square or cambered leads. The medallions represent themes from Christian iconography, and one of clear and tinted glass, the treatment being of classical style.	NURSLING AND ROWNHAMS

Circa 1760-2, for Robert Barton; extended circa late C19 and remodelled and extended early C20 and 1926. Red brick in Flemish bond with some blue brick headers. Roof concealed behind parapet. Brick axial stacks. PLAN: Large almost square, rectangular plan house facing west, extended in early C20 on east by single-storey extension, on which a second storey was added in 1926. The service wings on the north side are probably C19 additions. EXTERIOR: 2 storeys 2:1:1 bay west front with brick giant pilasters rising up to the coping of the parapet, the advanced centre and ground floor bay to left appear to be early C20 alterations, central doorway with arched canopy, fanlight above, flanking sidelights and Venetian window above; 12-pane sashes to right and left, ground floor right glazing bars missing and on left larger 15-pane sashes in bay; all with gauged brick flat arches; similar arches to blind panels above first floor windows. South garden front: similar blind panels and giant pilasters, 4:2 bays, right-hand 2 bays an early C20 single-storey and attic addition with a Venetian window, heightened in 1926. East elevation has extension projecting on left with Venetian ground floor window and 4 bays to right, partly 3 storeys with various sashes with glazing bars; lower wing on right refaced in circa early C20 with wall with large blind arch to match stables (qv). INTERIOR: Although remodelled in the C20 there is some C18 joinery surviving. The staircase seems to be an early C20 reconstruction of an C18 stair and has turned balusters and handrails ramped up to column newels. Drawing room and library have modillion cornices, apparently later friezes and plaster wall panels, moulded doorcases with overdoors and veneered panelled door and inlaid border continuing around the floor through the later partition between the two rooms; the library has fine set of Edwardian glazed bookcases and Corinthian columns to the chimneypie	NURSLING AND ROWNHAMS

Mid C16, with late C18 changes of fenestration, and minor alterations and restoration of 1895. Brick walls of English bond, parapet with stone coping and weathered band, stone moulded plinth band, chamfered reveals to the old openings, rubbed flat arches to altered openings. Gabled tile roof, with hipped dormers. E-plan of two storeys and attic, the main rectangular block having at each side projecting wings, with chamfered corners, the internal angles being filled with octagonal stair turrets; the outside walls have massive tapered stacks attached (four to the rear and two to each wing), with separated diagonal flues in groups of 2, 3, 4 or 5 (of c1900). The recessed front (south) of three bays has a gable with an attic casement, flanked by a dormer (behind the parapet); the centre of the 1st floor has a hoodmould above a carved coat of arms, and on each side is an original stone mullion and transom window of eight leaded lights: the ground floor has similar oak windows and the stone doorway (c1900) has a Tudor arch beneath three windows. The flanking elevations facing the entrance forecourt also have central gables, one 1st floor central sash window (C18) and a ground-floor mullion and transom window of six lights, at the inner side, the former three-bay system having been altered. The tall octagonal turrets have crenellated parapets, stone mullioned windows at the top on each face, and below this window on each face at different levels, some now filled and others having oak mullioned frames. The south ends of the wings have two bays below a central gable (with one casement), with C18 sashes (casements to the ground floor on the west side). The side and rear elevations are dominated by the chimney stacks, the intermediate spaces having an irregular pattern of windows, C18 sashes for the most part, but with some casements of c1900. Interior: there are rooms with original oak panelling and others with C18 pinewood panelling. Several	NURSLING AND ROWNHAMS

MATERIALS: brick and flint elevations, now (2014) rendered. A thatched roof with brick chimneystacks. PLAN: rectangular, and orientated roughly west to east, it is a one-and-a-half storey, two-cell plan, originally with a single internal chimney at the east end, and with an external stack added to the west in the C19, both of which heat only the ground floor rooms. Access to the attic is via a winder stair on the south of the east chimneystack. The front door is central on the south side, and there is an outshut to the north. EXTERIOR: the cottage faces roughly south. A central porch projects beneath a pitched, tiled roof with a crude timber awning above the front door. The return walls of the porch have oriels supported rudimentary brackets with leaded, timber-framed casement windows. There is a two-light lozenge-leaded casement window to either side of the porch on the ground floor. There is decorative timber framing to the upper part of the elevation, and an exposed post from the original frame on the left hand side. The half-hipped thatched roof has an eyebrow dormer on the right, with a C20 six-light timber casement with sloping fixed lights to either side. There is an internal brick stack at the east end of the half-hipped roof, and an external stack on the west end wall. The thatched roof of the north-facing rear continues as a catslide over the outshut, terminating at a low height. The wall itself is blind except for a small pair of casement windows on the left hand side; these are timber framed and leaded, each with six lights. The east elevation has a small, metal-framed C20 window to the outshut, and is otherwise blind. The west elevation has an external chimneystack with a kink at first floor level, and a wide, shallow outshut that houses a water tank and boiler. There is a pair of C18 cast iron-framed casements, each with nine lights and narrow glazing bars, beneath the hip of the gable. INTERIOR: the ground floor has a large chimneystack at the east end, the inglenook of which is infilled with brick but retains a timber bressumer with the faint inscription '1720'. There is a steep, timber winder stair on the right. There are four exposed transverse ceiling beams with shallow chamfers, and one modern reinforcing timber. The windows, C19 in style, retain C18 and C19 mismatched ironmongery. In the bathroom, at the east end of the outshut, is a pair of C19 casements. The ground floor has been dry-lined, and has a C20 timber floor and replacement doors. The C18 winder stair remains with most of its original joinery.	NURSLING AND ROWNHAMS

The timber framing of the dividing wall between the two rooms is exposed on the west side; the tie beam has been cut, and iron straps have been added to tie the beam onto timbers creating a crude architrave to the door. The door itself is plank and batten with strap hinges and reused historic ironmongery. In the west room there is a pair of casement windows in cast iron frames, likely to date from the C18. SUBSIDIARY FEATURES: south of the cottage is a brick-lined well.

Fairground Village Hall Weyhill Road Weyhill Andover Hampshire SP11 0PP	LB2	20/04/1993	437155	Range of former hop growers' fair booths forming an elongated U-shaped yard with the rear wall fronting Weyhill Road, Rectory Lane, and St Michael's and All Angels Churchyard. Early/mid C19. Cob rear wall with flint plinth to open-fronted booths with timber posts and king post trusses; slated roofs. These booths, on a piece of land known as Blissimore Hall Acre, were erected by a consortium of hop growers called the Farnham Gentlemen to market their produce. They are the surviving remnants of Weyhill Fair, one of the most important historic fairs in the country which is documented in 1225 and continued until 1959. William Cobbett visited the fair several times and made reference to it and the hop growers in Rural Rides. Thomas Hardy immortalised Weyhill Fair in The Mayor of Casterbridge, renaming it Weydon Priors. The booths are also an important survival of permanent fair booths which are a rare building type.	PENTON GRAFTON

The barn has a brick base and timber cladding, but the east wall is brick to eaves level with a timber gable, and there is a concrete block wall replacing the west end, abutting the shed. It has a tiled roof on the (south) roadside elevation and corrugated sheeting on the opposite roof slope. The adjoining shed is not of special interest. The roof structure is formed of four queen post trusses with trenched purlins, curved wind braces and common rafters which all appear to be original. The tie beams have straight and pegged braces to the principal wall posts, which have cut jowls, and which sit on a cill plate on top of the brick plinth. The wall framing comprises; at the south wall, studs with diagonal down braces from each principal post; and to the north wall, a substantial wall plate with curved braces from post to wall plate. SUMMARY OF IMPORTANCE: The barn adjoining Skidmore Cottages is of special interest as an C18 timber framed five bay threshing barn with double cart entrance. Walls of brickwork in English and Flemish bonds, some cambered ground-floor openings. Tiled roof of many gables, and two hipped sections of the later dates; a Tudor stack of three diagonal flues. A building of medieval origin, with considerable alteration and reconstruction: a tall north-south block has three wings on the west side, two old and joined, with coupled gables, one east wing (added to at the rear C20) linking to a late C20 tall T-shaped unit, this last replacing a late C18 Gothic structure of castellated appearance with corner turrets. The irregular form of the building is mostly two storeyed (with attic to the old north-south part), with mainly regular elevations to each section. Casements, some sashes. The entrance is within an arched porch, in a forward projection. The interior has a few minor features (e.g. beams, irregular small rooms) indicating its considerable age. Downgraded because of late C20 alterations.	ROMSEY EXTRA

Early C19, with C20 alterations and extensions, Yellow brickwork in Flemish bond, arches to ground-floor openings (recessed at the front) plinth: plain stone band at impost level. Steeply-pitched hipped roof, with eaves having coupled modillion-brackets. The almost-square pavilion structure has symmetrical form, with a sash window to the (east) front, and above this a Coade stone panel (of putti cutting and collecting sheaves of corn). The wider entrance elevation (facing the driveway) has an upper casement window above a C20 brick porch, at each corner there are piers, the rear one marking the gateway. To the south side there extends a single-storeyed C20 wing of brick and tile, and in front of this a low wall curves from the corner of the pavilion to stop at an outer pier of yellow brickwork with a stone cap, and above the wall there is a decorative metal rail.	ROMSEY EXTRA

An Elizabethan U-shaped shell, refaced and altered for the 2nd Lord Palmerston into a classical design of square plan, in two main stages, of 1768-71 by Capability Brown, and 1788 by Henry Holland, with subsequent minor additions and subtractions. Walls of yellow (white) brickwork in Flemish bond, with Portland stone dressings; eaves cornice, architraves with cornices or triangular or segmental pediments, cill band (north), plinth, and chamfered quoins of 1859. Hipped slate roof, flat-roofed dormers. The west front (1771) is a refacing of the original building (of irregular fenestation) by a symmetrical elevation of 2 storeys, attic and basement, 3.3.3 windows. The centre is an Ionic stone portico with pediment, approached by a flight of steps flanked by walls, ending on each side with a Grecian sarcophagus. The ground floor windows have alternate pediments of triangular and segmental form, an contain Victorian sashes. The central doorway has a larger segmental pediment on Victorian sashes. The central doorway has a larger segmental pediment on brackets. The south elevation is symmetrical, of two storeys, 3.3.3 windows: the centre projects slightly beneath a pediment and the ground floor windows have pediments; this also was a refacing of an irregular front. The east elevation is a result of Henry Holland's work of 1788, whereby the narrow ends of the Elizabethan wings were widened, and the old enclosed forecourt filled with a recessed portico, and behind it an octagonal toplit vestibule: the result is a symmetrical facade of two storeys and attic, 3. portic . 3 windows. The stone portico has four slender Ionic columns with pilasters at each side, the open interior containing niches on each side of a central doorway. The raising of a front wall to the attic (by T L Donaldson 1859) results in a taller elevation. A site of Saxon occupation, with continuous residence from the C13: by the mid C14 a substantial stone-built hall, with an east tower and a south chapel existed (and virtually remains): about 1840 additions were made and in 1895 a large series of additions in conforming scale: in the C20 service wings of similar style were added, of a lesser scale. The north front is ashlar of the medieval building, with later west-side extension in roughcast, the stonework of the north east corner (originally the tower) returns on the east and south (part) with a recessed roughcast section separating it from a south side wing (1895) of brickwork, the south range is brickwork of English bond, except for the middle section of ground floor walling (the south wall of the chapel) of stone and flint with stone dressings; the latest work is rendered. Tile roof, with Tudor stacks of c1900. The main (north) front is symmetrical in general form, of two storeys and attic, 1.5.1 windows, arranged irregularly in the recessed centre: and with 1.3.1 gables (four of the C17) which are rendered. The walling is ashlar (except the west side), the fenestration is mid C17 with oak mullion and transom windows of varied sizes, in the centre is a gabled porch of 1658. The east elevation shows as two tall gabled blocks (with only one window), the north side being the medieval tower and the south of similar form in brickwork of English bond, separated by a recess above a half-glazed porch (1895). The south elevation has gabled projections (1895) at each side of two storeys and attic one window, the centre being of two storeys five about six windows: the central part is c1840, although half the ground floor is the medieval chapel, with four coupled stone windows. To the west of the main block, the service additions (c1900) and later) are of lower height but two-storeyed, in a vernacular style; these irregular units surround a small courtyard, entered through an archway. The interior has some C17 oak panelling and some rooms with pinewood panelling (early C19), there is a stone Tudor fireplace (probably reset) and an upper room has the arch-braced main truss of the (probable) medieval solar.	ROMSEY EXTRA

Clay tile roofs. Timber windows. PLAN: 3-storey frontage of 4 bays; a carriageway in the left-hand bay leads through to a long, narrow yard. A staircase provides access to the upper floors of the front block and to a long 3-storey range at the rear, now hotel rooms. The rear range would have contained the inn chambers, arranged on three levels, accessed by an unwallled walkway at ground floor (now enclosed) and by open galleries above, also enclosed. This range is followed by a deeper 2-storey block and then a 3-storey extension of c1960, which is not of special interest. At the end of the yard is a long 2-storey stable block. EXTERIOR: Front elevation has an C18 brick façade with a painted render finish, banded rustication to ground floor and plain strings to the first and second-floor levels, and segmental-headed windows with keystones to upper floors 6-over-6 pane sash windows; those to the upper floors later replacements. Moulded and dentilled timber eaves cornice. Steeply pitched half-hipped roof. 3 dormers with casement windows. Timber framing visible in E wall of carriageway passage. Long 3-storey former lodging range facing yard; ground floor has early C19 glazed timber infill; galleries above have casement windows and horizontal sliding timber shutters of C18 appearance. Sash windows to rear elevation. The following range is of brick and has been altered and extended; it has modern timber sash and casement windows. At the northernmost end of the yard range is a 3-storey extension of c1960, which is not of special interest. INTERIOR: The lower cellar walls are of coursed stone and flintwork; parts of brick vaulting are also visible. The remains of a Gothic window are understood to survive. The front ground-floor room has exposed high-quality timber framing with bracing of exceptional size. gallery floor above. The inner walls of this range has exposed timber framing at first and second floor levels. Ground floor room has restored timber mullioned windows on the corridor site; this room is now open plan apart from a section of a cross partition, and has exposed timber framing, a heavy camfered axial beam and a brick chimney breast on the N wall. On the W wall and partition there is a series of wall paintings comprising a geometric design framed by imitation wooden panelling with foliate borders; grisaille imitation panelling with large Tudor Roses, and a much-restored interlocking strapwork pattern. These are typical of decoration from the mid C16 to early C17 and probably form one single scheme. Behind the partition is a further, possibly later, decorative scheme black latticework on a yellow ochre background with inset quatrefoils and floral designs. Timber framing is visible in some of the upper floor hotel rooms; further framing may be concealed beneath modern finishes. A part-exposed chimney breast on the first floor has decorative wall painting on plaster, comprising black interlaced quatrefoils on a yellow ochre background with circular floral designs, possibly contemporary with the second decorative ground-floor scheme described above. The interior of the following 2-storey block has been much altered. Upper floors of building only partly inspected. Roofs not inspected.

SUBSIDIARY FEATURES: C18 stable block to rear of yard, converted to hotel rooms. Long 2 storey range. Red brick laid in English bond with vitrified headers. Ground floor altered. Upper floor bays are demarcated by shallow pilasters and have hay loft shutters. Important group value with the inn.

HISTORY: Romsey was situated on a main route between the royal and ecclesiastical centres of Winchester and Salisbury, and became an important staging post in the C18 for travellers to London and the south west. The White Horse has been Romsey's principal inn since the medieval period, and may have been a guest house for the Abbey, founded in the C9.

SUMMARY OF IMPORTANCE: Of major architectural and historic significance as well-preserved, later-medieval purpose-built inn with earlier cellars, whose galleried plan form is still clearly legible. Very few galleried inns survive in anything like their original form, and therefore possess exceptional interest. The wall paintings are important examples of secular decoration, possibly spanning 200 years, and contain rare and interesting motifs. There are good features from later phases.

Romsey Railway Station Station Road Romsey Hampshire SO51 8DT	LB2	15/12/2004	491989	Stationmaster's house with attached ticket office, subway and waiting room. Romsey Station opened on 9th March 1847 and the eastern part of the stationmaster's house with waiting rooms dates from this time. The Stationmaster's house was extended to the west in matching style probably in the 1860s and the waiting room on the opposite platform was probably built by this time. Circa 1887 The Booking Hall was added further east, the platforms were extended and a subway was built. Classical style. EXTERIOR: Stationmaster's House is of stock brick in Flemish bond with hipped roof with overhanging eaves and three brick chimneystacks, two of which had arches, one later filled-in. Because of the raised platform the building is of two storeys to the platform side and three storeys to the rear. On the platform side the original part has two multipane sashes to the first floor, one to the ground floor and entrance. The 1860s extension has three sashes with vertical glazing bars only, similar on the ground floor and two entrances. There is an attached verandah with wooden fretted canopy supported on cast iron columns. The single storey ticket office is also of stock brick (painted to the rear) and has gabled slate roof with red brick chimneystack and cambered sashes with horns. The wooden canopy stretches around three sides of the building, supported on cast iron columns to the platform sides and on large cast iron brackets to the other two sides. The rear elevation of the stationmaster's house has tripartite cambered sashes to the 1840s part, one second floor window modified in the late c20. The ground floor has a cambered opening and flight of stone steps set sideways to a private entrance. The 1860s extension has a cambered sash with verticals only and the left side elevation has three similar windows to the upper floors but the ground floor has round-headed arcading. Attached to the west end is a wooden platform extension of the 1880s CONTINUED IN WORD.....	ROMSEY TOWN (ABBEY)

64 Banning Street Romsey Hampshire SO51 8GU	LB2	05/04/2004	491398	House, at one time a public house. Early C18 building of two ranges with C19 function room built on to south and some re-fenestration. EXTERIOR: Main part of the building is brick, now painted. The front range has a hipped roof with brick chimneystack rising out of the left hip. It is two storeys and has three windows, the central blank, the others C19 6-pane sashes. The ground floor has two cambered Yorkshire-type sliding casements and central cambered doorcase with C20 door. Attached to the south gable is a tall C19 function room with hipped roof, paired large sash window with vertical glazing bars and horns and tall blocked cambered doorcase. To the rear of the main front range is a further range with gabled tiled roof with brick chimnerstack rising out of the rear slope, C19 cambered casements and a rear outshut with slate roof. INTERIOR: Ground floor has front room with C18 wooden fire surround with panelling, vertical pine boards and it retains fixed bar benches on two walls. This room is divided from the adjacent function room area by lightweight tongue and groove pine panelling, probably of late C19 date. The ground floor also retains some early C18 fielded two-panelled doors with L/H hinges and late C18 and C19 matchboard panelling. The rear extension to the main house was originally a stable and retains the original hay manager. The cellar is of early to mid C18 date with a single arched wall niche for holding a lamp or candle. Some of the floor joists are reused from the earlier structure and show traces of smoke-blackening. The first floor has simple tow panel early C18 doors in at least two rooms. The arear range retains much of the original C18 roof structure, the principal rafter assembly at the bay divisions having triangular plates within which the ridge boards are situated. The front range roof was mainly replaced by Strong and Co Brewery before the building became a private house. See word document for history description.	ROMSEY TOWN (ABBEY)

Middle Bridge Mainstone Romsey Hampshire	LB1	28/08/1951	139431	Dated 1788. Mylne architect. Rebuilt and widened in 1931, under W Taylor, County Surveyor, exactly on Mylne's design. (Robert Mylne - the most famous of a family of bridge designers). A graceful single segmental arch, with slightly projecting abutments on each bank, with a plain circular panel in each abutment. Plain raised string with small bedmould at road level. Plain solid parapet end coping, the latter moulded on outer face, each side of bridge. The parapet curved outwards for some distance at each end. The bridge replaces an older construction, and is in character with the architecture of Broadlands of which there is a good view from the bridge itself.	ROMSEY TOWN (ABBEY)

Memorial To Violet Charlotte Johnson MBE Stockbridge Cemetery Winton Hill	LB2	08/04/2008	504512	Stone memorial cross to Violet Charlotte Johnson MBE, 1923, commissioned by her husband, Herbet Johnson, and designed by Sir Edwin Lutyens. DESCRIPTION: Stone cross on an elegant slender and tapering hexagonal shaft. Stepped hexagonal base, the upper two sections of which are inscribed on the three westerly facing sides. Four-point cross, again hexagonal in section, draped with a carved stone wreath. Inscription, in capital letters, reads (upper section:) Sacred to the memory of Violet Charlotte MBE a gracious lady of England/Beloved of all who knew her for rare qualities of heart and mind endowed with every capacity for the enjoyment of life, she gave herself to the service of others and her solicitude/during the Great War for the wounded soldiers in her hospitals at Marsh Court and/Stockbridge contributed to her untimely end (middle section:) Erected by her husband Herbert Johnson Esq. of Marsh Court (lower section:) The Souls of the righteous are in hand of God/Dedicated 5th August 1923. The memorial is the focal point of the Winton Hill cemetery located at the east of the single avenue. HISTORY: The memorial to Violet Charlotte Johnson was erected in 1923 by her husband, financier Herbert Johnson. Violet Johnson was awarded an MBE for her services in the care of wounded soldiers from the First World War. As is recorded on her memorial she was associated with hospitals in both Stockbridge and at her house, Marsh Court in neighbouring Kings Somborne. It is assumed that she is buried in the cemetery, but this has not been confirmed. The memorial was designed by the celebrated architect, Sir Edwin Landseer Lutyens (1869-1944). Lutyens had connections with both Stockbridge and the Johnsons. He designed the village was memorial in 1921 (Grade II), which is located at the foot of Winton Hill. Lutyens also built the large country house of Marsh Court for Herbert and Violet Johnson in 1901-05, which he subsequently extended in 1924-26. Marsh Court (now known as Marshcourt School) is listed at Grade I. Lutyens is well known for his country houses, a number of which were designed in collaboration with the important garden designer, Gertrude Jekyll. He was knighted in 1918 for his work in Delhi (where he advised on the planning of the new capital and designed government buildings and the Viceroy's House), and for the Imperial War Graves Commission (he was responsible for 126 war cemeteries in Europe, perhaps most	STOCKBRIDGE famously the cemetery at Etaples.) Perhaps his most famous memorial is the Cenotaph in Whitehall, London, designed in 1919 (Listed Grade I).

REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

The memorial to Violet Charlotte Johnson MBE of 1923, located in Winton Hill cemetery, Stockbridge, is designed at Grade II for the following principal reasons:

- _ A simple yet elegant memorial which forms the focal point of the small Winton Hill cemetery and is a good example of an early C20 monument.
- _ An unusual example of a private memorial cross designed by the important architect, Sir Edwin Lutyens.
- _ A memorial to an individual who, as the inscription recounts, was noted for her work with the wounded of the First World War, and is therefore of historic interest.

Green Place Somborne Park Road Stockbridge Hampshire SO20 6HW	LB2	26/08/2008	504633	House, 1906-07 for Mr and Mrs Stratford Hill to the designs of the architect MH Baillie Scott. Extension of 1913, also by Baillie Scott. Minor late C20-early C21 alterations. MATERIALS: Rendered brick except for chimneys and buttresses which are of exposed red brick; tile roofs. PLAN: Original holiday cottage of 1906-07: a 'U'-plan, single-storey building. Extended to the west in 1913 with the addition of a two-storey range in the same style and a hipped kitchen range at right angles, with boiler and coal house and outside WC to the north. Original configuration no longer clear except for the 'U'-shaped corridor with two reception rooms to the south-east and north-east, the latter opening from the entrance lobby, the former an impressive hall (now the drawing room). The service area is now in the addition of 1913, to the north-west with one bedroom on the ground floor and the remaining three above. EXTERIOR: It has a main entrance range to the east under a gabled roof. The original wings and the extension of 1913 have hipped roofs. There are a number of tall and slender brick chimney stacks with cream chimney pots. Windows are oak framed with leaded lights. The main entrance is through a rounded archway with a tile detailing leading into an enclosed porch. The front door is at right angles to the entrance arch and is an original Baillie Scott design; a broad and solid panelled door which is illustrated in Haigh (1995, p76) as an exemplar of his front door designs and attention to detail. To the south the entrance is a four-light flat-roofed dormer providing light into the main hall at clerestory level. There is also a square bay window to the south and shallow ranking buttresses flanking the entrance. The west garden elevation is not as coherent a composition. Here one sees the internal courtyard of the original holiday house as well as the extension of 1913. Although these are in the same style the design is therefore a little lop-sided and does not have the symmetry of the early house. INTERIOR: The reception room off the entrance hall has a herringbone brick floor and panelled walls. This leads to a corridor running around the internal courtyard of the 'U'-plan houses. Theo	STOCKBRIDGE

corridor has exposed posts and beams with curving braces, all painted white, some brick noggin and wooden floorboards. (It is likely that the timbers were originally unpainted as Baillie Scott chose his wood carefully for its quality and colour.) The hall (or drawing room) is the most impressive internal space and is open to collar height. There are exposed oak structural timbers (posts, arch braces, truss and curving struts). There is an inglenook fireplace with a brick hearth and an oak bressumer which has the carved inscription: 'Elen Mary Stratford Hill, wife of Arthur Norman Hill of Liverpool, built this house in 1906'.
The inglenook is lit by a small window in the west wall.

Many of the original internal broad plank doors survive with iron furniture and wooden latches and finger plates. Much of the original iron window furniture also survives. There are some original fireplaces typical by tile surrounds or mantles, but some have been removed, particularly on the first floor, and the dining room fireplace is a replacement. In the ground floor bedroom, at the west end of the 1913 extension, is a painted inscription on the wall reads: 'And it fell upon a day or days that they were in a green place and they were in the sun and out of the wind and they were near their friend and far from their foes and they could see everyone and no one could see them'. It has been suggested that this was painted by Arthur Hill but it could equally have been the work of the artist and subsequent owner, Barbara Priestly. Opposite this bedroom is a small ground floor to ceiling panelled walls. The kitchen has been opened up and modernised as it is a spanned by reinforced steel joist, but the pantry and utility room retain their stone slabs for cool storage.

ANCILLARY FEATURES: Garden building to the north-east, also by Baillie Scott and in the same style as the house: roughcast rendered brick walls with an exposed brick ranking buttress; pitched tiled roof; leaded casements in oak frames. It has a post supporting the roof as its north-west corner, creating a covered porch/entrance.
This relates to the early holiday cottage as is shown on the 1910 Ordnance Survey Map.

HISTORY: Green Place was designed by the architect MH Baillie Scott and built in 1906-07 for Mr and Mrs Hill (Arthur Hill was a solicitor who was later knighted). It was designed as a holiday cottage but was enlarged, also by Baillie Scott, in 1913 to provide more accommodation so that the Hills could live in the house permanently, which they did from circa 1920. The house was subsequently owned by Lady Barbara Wykeman who was an architect and painted known professionally as Barbara Priestley (she was the daughter of the writer JB Priestley).

There have been more recent alterations and additions to the house, in the late C20 and early C21, including some minor recording. For example, a reinforced steel joist now supports the kitchen ceiling, indicating the removal of an earlier wall to open up this space. The door into the Hobby Room has been move, and cupboards and modern French doors, leading out from the same room to the former polycarbonate conservatory (now demolished), have been inserted. Some of the roof tiles have also been replaced with machine made tiles.

MH Baillie Scott (1865-1945) was a notable architect of the arts and Crafts style, an English aesthetic reformist movement which was at its height between approximately 1880 and 1910. The movement was a reaction against a perceived soulless machination and a return to quality craftsmanship in an affordable manner, influencing not only architecture but also garden design, decorative arts and crafts, and furniture design. Baillie Scott was a prolific architect in this genre with over 300 designs to his name, although not all of these were realised.

REASON FOR DESIGNATION: Green Place, a house of 1906-07 by the architect MH Baillie Scott and extended in 1913 by the same architect, is listed at Grade II for the following principal reasons:

- A good example of a modest house by Baillie Scott in the Arts and Crafts style.
- A subtle design using many Baillie Scott devices in its massing and plan.
- Quality materials and attention to detail in its architect-designed fixtures and fittings.

Single cell with ½-octagon apse, north and south porches, and double-bellcote at the west end. Flint walls with brick dressings; thin horizontal bands, quoins, separate voussoirs to pointed arches, buttresses and plinth. The traceried parts and mullions of the windows are of stone; lancets with sharply pointed cusping, of 1, 2 and 4 lights, the largest with a hood-mould. The roof of 1976 is of low pitch, of corrugated metal; a fragment of the original tile roof remains above the west gable, linked to the bell-turret, which is supported by 2 tapered buttresses, enclosing a coupled west window. Gabled porches with buttresses and pointed arches with patterned voussoirs. The rear third of the interior retains its original yellow brick walls with red banding and dado, and a C20 glazed screen separates this from the main church, which has plastered walls, and late C20 furnishings. Of early medieval origin, mainly a rebuild of 1875 to the design of William White, with a western tower of 1898. Single cell, with a small apse (on old foundations), a north transept, north vestry at the west end, and south porch. Plain tile roof overall, with a lower apse roof of 5 hips above a semi-circular eaves. The walls are of coarse flints with 2 thin horizontal bands of tiles, stone chequer pattern in the upper part of the apse, stone dressings; buttresses, plinth, coupled windows (one triple) with cusping and plate tracery, and 2 very small apse windows. The east gable (an early fragment) has a coupled opening with round arches on simple impost blocks of early Romanesque form. The tower is of stone, with flat corner buttresses, an octagonal stair turret at the south-west corner, and a shingled broach spire. Within, the church is plain; in the apse the south window is set within a 2-arched arcade; the chancel arch (in the very thick east wall) is pointed, with impost blocks, the tower arch has many mouldings, merging with the jamb, the inner mouldings finishing on carved brackets. The chief feature of the church is a lead font (probably early C17), being a tub on a C20 fluted wooden base and having raised cast ornament, of fleur-de-lys, thistle and rose	TANGLEY

Walls of large knapped flints, with stone dressings; quoins, buttresses, plinth, reticulated tracery; the vestry has thin horizontal flint panels and brick quoins, bands diagonal buttresses. The interior is Victorian decorated, with a number of interesting features. On the north side of the chancel there are unequal Perpendicular arches with panelled soffits, the eastern most (& smaller) covering an altar tomb of Purbeck marble with male and female effigies (c1510); on the south side is an earlier perpendicular canopy arch above an altar tomb with an inset (unmarked) brass: the south face of the tomb is outside the church, associated with a restoration ogee-headed priests door and a traceried window. A C19 Perpendicular table top tomb forms an altar at the east end of the aisle. There is a pillar piscina, a C13 chancel arch, a Norman tower arch. In the tower are 2 vertical slabs, one with the eroded figure of a knight (c1200). The altar reredos is 1943, the font and seating 1844. On the chancel floor is a fine brass of a knight in armour (Sir John Lysle, 1407), and at the west end of the aisle an oak carved statue of a lady (Elizabeth Philpotts) in Elizabethan costume (of ruff, puffed sleeves, wide skirts). The tower of 1801 is of ashlar, with 3 plain stages, a crenellated parapet with tiny crocketed pinnacles at each corner; unusually the porch (of Perpendicular style) is attached to the east side of its south wall.	THRUXTON

C12, tower of 1578, C17 alterations, C18 porch, north aisle of 1890, extended chancel of 1894, vestry of 103, and restorations of 1908 (Tower) and 1968 (porch). Flint and roughcast walls, with a tile roof. Originally an aisleless nave and chancel, with a north aisle added in the late C12; in the C17 the arcade was removed and the nave widened to incorporate the aisle, the chancel being correspondingly widened on its north side; 2 bays of the nave arcade were re-used to form a double chancel arch, and the roof was supported on 2 octagonal timber posts. The present north aisle was added in 1890 with a new arcade of 3 bays, and the chancel was extended (as a sanctuary) in 1894. The exterior has roughcast walls with stone dressings; there are 3 windows of the early C17, Victorian coupled lancets, and Victorian/decorated east and south windows to the sanctuary, the north aisle has 2 small triple lights and a blocked Norman (re-set) doorway. The tower (probably replacing an earlier structure) is plain, with stepped buttresses, flint walls up to the bell stage, which is cement rendered, and a plain parapet with crocketed corner pinnacles. The porch, of brickwork, has a round arch with a key. The interior is Victorian except for the nave, which has 2 slightly pointed chancel arches resting on drum columns; the posts support tie beams, above which are 3 slender Tuscan columns (supporting the ceiling). There is a Norman piscina pillar (placed in the sanctuary) and a stone font in the shape of a chalice, with the rim inscribed ..."Richard Greene of Winterbourne Stoke gave this 1629...." and floor slabs of C18 and C19 date.	UPPER CLATFORD

Forecourt Wall And Outbuildings E Of Upton Manor Upton Road Linkenholt Andover Hampshire SP11 0JR	LB2	27/09/1984	140003	Forecourt walls, outbuildings and cistern. Early and late C19. The deep grassed forecourt with driveway has a roadside wall of flint panels and brickwork, curving inwards to a plain gateway. On the south side there is a 2-storeyed block with a tile roof, ½-hipped at the north end (with exposed timber frame in the gable) and hipped at the south end; the walls are brick with flint panels, the inner face with a window above a central doorway. At right angles (and bordering the south side of the forecourt) is a single-storeyed range of flint and brick, with a thatched roof. In the centre of the forecourt is a hexagonal lead cistern, with raised strapwork ornament dated 1707. Included for group value.	VERNHAM DEAN
Upton Manor Upton Road Linkenholt Andover Hampshire SP11 0JR	LB2	20/12/1960	140002	House. Early C18, restored and extended in 1936. The front wall is original, and the remainder is a restoration and extension of 1936, in a closely matching style. Brick, with a hipped tile roof. Symmetrical front (east) of 2 storeys, 5 windows, with set-backs of the later date at each side, of 1 window. Flemish bond, with flush blue panels between the openings, 1st floor band, red rubbed flat arches to the ground floor with carved soffit ornament, stone cills, plinth; the former eaves cornice is now replaced with a brick dentil eaves course (early C19), with wood lintels to the upper openings. Old sashes. C20 doorcase, with moulded and arched pediment, lower cornice mouldings stepped forward above consoles at each side, panelled pilasters, architrave with key, and 6-panelled door. The south elevation (1936) repeats the design, with a pediment, deep ground floor windows, and a more ornate doorway.	VERNHAM DEAN

Some timber-framing within suggests that the present centre was a medieval framed house, which had at a later date 3 massive chimneys attached to the rear (now inside). The gabled wings at each side are probably C1600, when the whole building was gabled wings at each side are probably C1600, when the whole building was rebuilt in brickwork (English bond); the present passage along the rear and the extended wings are C18 and early C19, and the refacing of flint and brickwork in the centre front and the end elevations is late C18. Brick and flint with a tile roof. Symmetrical front (east) of 2 storeys (with attics to the wings and basement to the centre), 1.5.1 windows. The slightly projecting gabled wings are in English bond, on a high plinth, the centre is flintwork with brick dressings, cambered arches to the ground floor, with 3 light chamfered brick mullions to the basement. Leaded casements (re-set at a lower level to the ground floor centre), with 2-storey splayed bays to the wings (with mullion and transom casements to the south side and C20 sashes to the North). C20 gabled brick porch, enclosing an Elizabethan thick wood door frame, with the mouldings stopped above a plain base, with a panelled door now hung to open outwards. The north elevation (to the wing) has a massive stack with 2 diagonal flues, set against English bond brickwork with blue diaper patterns, the west side having narrow horizontal flint bands: the south elevation is similar with 2 stacks (one with a single diagonal flue, the other of 3 flues, the 2 outer diagonal). The rear has walls of Flemish bond with blue headers, cambered ground floor openings, casements (some blocked), and the wings project and appear of the early C19, with an access to higher ground from the 1st floor at the north side. Within, there is C17 panelling, an elaborate (but crude) Jacobean screen with Ionic pilasters, Jacobean panelling above a fireplace,	VERNHAM DEAN

Row Of Three Buildings To The North End Of Wayside Cottage Linkenholt Road Upton Andover Hampshire SP11 0JP	LB2	06/05/2011	1399927	Summary of Building Row of three early C19 rural, workers' cottages, built within a late C17 or early C18 house which had been altered or extended by a bay to the north in the C18. The cottages were part of a larger complex known locally as the Barracks. English Heritage Advice Report 06 May 2011 Reasons for Designation The three cottages being to the north end of the building known as Wayside Cottage (which is not included in the listing), part of an early C19 complex of rural workers' cottages, which were built within a late C17 or early C18 house are listed at Grade 2 for the following principal reasons: * Architectural interest: modular, agricultural workers' cottages built within the shell of a well-appointed late C17 or early C18 house and possibly built according to agricultural reformers' recommendations; * Plan: very clearly defined single-cell two-storey units, each subdivided internally into a larger heated ground floor room and smaller scullery from which the stair rise behind the stack; earlier house, possibly with a through passage giving on to a hall/ kitchen and a separate parlour to each side; * Materials and fittings: early C19 standardized metal-framed casements and larch roof structure; early C19 lime-plastered reed partitions and ceilings; rare early C18 metal-framed casement window and fittings; * Historic interest: barrack-like plan of rural agricultural workers' cottages corresponding with the rise in agricultural productivity during the Napoleonic Wars and the consequent increase in local rural population. History When agricultural production increased in the early C19 and in particular during Napoleonic Wars, the local rural population rose rapidly. Reluctant to build on profitable farmland, local landowners often preferred to convert existing buildings into workers cottages such as these. The cellular plan and structure of each cottage is very clearly defined as if following a pattern book exemplar, of a type recommended by the	VERNHAM DEAN

agricultural commentators and reformers. As well as using imported fittings, the use of reed in ceilings and walls is unusual locally but is evident throughout the cottages. Although the cottages were intended as simple accommodation, they are finished to a relatively high standard, being of two full storeys, well-lit and ventilated and with a full stair rather than a ladder.

The three northernmost cottages at Wayside are shown on the 1838/9 tithe map as the eastern range of buildings laid out round the north, east and west sides of a yard, and appear to date from the early C19.

However, at the core of the cottages is a late C17 or early C18 building of relatively high status, indicated by the moulded brick plinth on the roadside elevation and blocked opening or oculus over the entrance, which correlates with a building shown on the Upton Enclosure map of 1735. Later in the C19, and certainly by the date of the 1867-83 OS map, the east range was extended southwards adding three more cottages.

According to this map the western range had been demolished and the cottages are individually marked, but shown as five rather than six units. The cottages were known as the Barracks, a term widely applied to purpose-built blocks of accommodation, whether for agricultural or military use. Although we do not know for what exact purpose they were built, the Barracks were built on an unusually large scale for a community of this size and suggest growth in the local economy.

The regular, modular system continued into the C19 when the southern cottages which form Wayside Cottage were added. Of two phases, the latest, southernmost section was less well built than the early range.

The northern section which appears to be of C18 origin, and with a west elevation similar to the early C18 phase, was altered on the roadside in the C19 so that like the northernmost bay, the front and rear elevations do not correspond. These three southern cottages were amalgamated to form a single house and opened up internally, over-riding the original plan and purpose, which are no longer evident. In the mid-C20 the large open C20 cart shed or open-fronted barn attached to the western end of the northern cottage replaced a row of individual sheds on the site of the northern range.

Details

MATERIALS: knapped flint with red and red/brown brick and tile dressings. The hipped slate roof is of early C19 date. Longitudinal, internal brick stacks, set forward from the ridge. C17/C18 internal partitions are of masonry and stud work. Early C19 internal studwork partitions and ceilings are infilled with reed, and lime plastered. Floors are of brick paviers.

PLAN: the three cottages are laid out with a distinct and identical, although mirrored, plan and with identical fittings. Each is a single cell comprising a main ground floor room heated by a large stack and to the rear a smaller room from which a timber stair rises against the party wall. Entrances are at the rear, although the central and southern cottages also share a roadside entrance. The earlier two-cell building appears to have had a through passage, probably opening into a hall/kitchen on one side and a separate parlour on the other while aspiring to a near symmetrical street frontage, and with a further bay to the north.

English Heritage Advice Report 06 May 2011

EXTERIOR: the roadside elevation has long and short quoins of narrow, late C17/early C18 red brick, and a plinth of similar worn, ovolo moulded brick and tile. The northern bay has been added or altered; although the plinth continues, a straight joint separates the bays at the rear, where the central bay has brick quoins similar to the roadside elevation; the roadside elevation and north return have been patched and repaired using larger, later, red brick.

The entrance on the east elevation, to the north of the southern bay, appears to cut through the plinth, has a later brick, buttressed surround and a timber lintel and a plank door. Ground floor windows, under segmental arches, have three-light metal casements in timber frames, while on the first floor windows are of two lights in reduced openings. The window south of the entrance has a wrought iron casement, probably of C18 date, with diamond leaded lights fixed to iron saddle bars and with an iron handle and a pair of latches. Other windows are early C19, square-paned, cast iron casements. Above the entrance is evidence of a small blocked window, possibly an oculus (small round window). The northern and rear elevations are plainly detailed with red and red/brown brick dressings to the window and door openings. Ground floor openings also have segmental arches; some surrounds have been altered in vertically laid brick. Windows are similar cast iron casements with the exception of one ground floor window which has diamond leaded lights. The entrance to the northern cottage breaks through the west wall which has subsequently been repaired in C20 blockwork. The central and southern cottages share an entrance on the west elevation which leads to a small lobby, and is opposite the roadside entrance. The northern jamb of the entrance has been repaired externally, although internally it is of worn, early brick. The north elevation has a single window on each floor.

INTERIOR:

The through passage, which was blocked by a cross wall which was inserted when the house was converted to cottages, was subsequently altered to create a separate entrance to the main room in the southern cottage. Stacks are built of early, narrow brick except for one flank of each which is of larger early C19 brick. The northern stack is rebuilt at first floor level and curtailed. Each ground floor fireplace has a reeded mantelshelf on moulded brackets. The southern cottage has a large freestanding cast iron stove. The partly-exposed reveal of the late C17/early C18 window opening of the southern cottage is roll moulded; elsewhere window openings are rendered. This window has cyma moulded timber mullions, possibly replaced in the early C19; elsewhere, windows have plain chamfered timber mullions. Ground floor rooms have brick paviers; t0001

Rebuilt brick chimney at left end of older section. One storey, 2 bays, the left bay originally containing timber-framed wattle-and-daub chimney stack and probably unceiled, the right bay with attic floor. Extension on left of 2 storeys, 2 bays. Older section has square-panelled timber-frame with straight braces up to wall plate; rafter ends visible. Entrance is at left end, having board door in open pent porch; to its right a 2-light leaded casement with 2-light dormer above. Right-hand bay has 2 small windows, with glazing bars in place of former 6-light mullioned window. Right gable end has two small C19/earlyC20 bay windows, that on left in place of former mullioned window; and a C19 3-light window above. The extension has small-paned windows, those on 1st floor wing above eaves; large lean-to porch at rest. INTERIOR: older section has late C17/early C19 brick inglenook fireplace, much reworked C20, and above it, in attic, framework survives from the former timber chimneystack; the attic floor of this bay appears to have been inserted at the same date as the inglenook, the spine-beam having chamfer and cyma stops at one end only and the joists unchamfered. The original window openings have shutter rebates in their heads and mortices from former mullions; one diamond-set mullion survives in the front window. Timber-framed partition wall between bays. Roof retains original purlins, wind-braces and rafters.	WELLOW

Banded flint and brick with some chalk blocks; brick dressings; plain tile roof. Originally a large open hall; loft floor inserted C19. 8 roof bays; late C19 single-storey 3-bay brick extension at right end; C20 brick outshut at left end. Brick quoins and cambered openings, the windows with diamond-leaded wood-framed lights, the doorways with board doors with cover strips. Late C20 garage door at left end. 3 gabled dormers. Rear: C17 or C18 brick quoins and buttress at right end, 2-light windows, and sashes at left end; two loading hatches; 2 gabled dormers. Blind oculus to left gable. Interior: C19 stalls. Half-way up walls, wooden corbels project, supporting jewelled vertical posts and straight braces, both of which rise to tie-beam. Tie-beams support queen-posts which have collars and slightly arched braces to clasped through purlins; passing braces rise from tie-beam to collar, face halved to queen posts. Collared rafters with wedges at base between rafter feet and wall plate and wedges also at junction of rafters and purlins at which point the rafters are scarf-jointed (the principal rafters are unjointed). Wall plates have trait de Jupiter joints. Collars and passing braces have notched lap joints. There are some carpenters' marks. The timbers are smoke-blackened, this being more heavy at the centre. The 2 left-hand bays were reconstructed in the C17 and are unsooted, having a queen strut truss; lower tier of staggered butt purlins, upper tier of clasped through purlins on collar, and straight window-braces. The Benedictine abbey was founded C986. It was ruled from 1226-57 by Abbess Euphemia who was a prodigious builder and, in view of the probable date of this building, she is likely to have been responsible for its construction. War Memorial Church Street Wherwell Andover Hampshire	LB2	28/10/2008	505367	A war memorial of ashlar blocks, limestone and metal commemorating those fallen in war in two World Wars. DESCRIPTION: The war memorial consists of a Neo-classical pillar or column at the junction of three roads so designed as to have face to each of the three conjoining road directions. The polygonal (three faces with intervening cusps) limestone plinth sits on a circular foundation of limestone paving slabs. On this plinth sits the stone base, with moulded decoration, which bears a three-faced, polygonal column of ashlar stone blocks with inscriptions in an elegant typescript on moulded tablets in each face. On the tablet which faces south in the dedication, 'IN HONOUR OF THE MEN OF WHERWELL WHO SERVED THEIR KING AND COUNTRY IN THE GREAT WAR 1914-1918'; under which is a list of 35 names on blocks standing proud of the column, and one name below on the plane of the column. This dedication is repeated on the side of the monument, with another 35 names on the blocks and two below. On the tables on the west is a cross under which is the dedication, 'IN GRATEFUL REMEMBERANCE OF THE MEN OF WHERELL WHO GAVE THEIR LIVES IN THE GREAT WARS'; under which is 'FAITHFUL UNTO DEATH' with the dates 1914 and 1918 below and a list of 24 names on the blocks and two below. On the base of the column on this side are the dates 1939 and 1945 and six names below. The column is topped by a plain frieze with beaded decoration dividing it from a moulded cornice above. Above the cornice is a small cross on a base of festooned and fluted decoration. The whole monument is about 4m high. HISTORY: The memorial which was designed by the architect William Henry Ward (1865-1924) was unveiled on 19th September 1920 by Major General Sir Robert Wigham and was dedicated by local clergy and dignitaries. REASONS FOR DESIGNATION: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • It is an elegant memorial of good quality workmanship and materials • It is an unusual design by a recognised architect. • It is an eloquent witness to the impact of tragic events on this community 	WHERWELL
