Whilst it can't be said that the documents provided aren't, after a very quick view, thorough and clear, the accessibility is truly awful. A repository of PDF documents really isn't the way to present so much information. Much more effort needs to be made so that interested parties can identify matters that may affect them and get more details without having to wade through reams of potentially irrelevant information.

The contents of the PDF files needs to be ported to an easily-browseable website where a user can easily navigate to relevant information.
