Dear Faye

We appreciate your continued attention to our concerns regarding this order. We continue to hold strong reservations about its impact, and recent circumstances have only heightened our apprehensions. The recent heatwave has meant that many residents, including ourselves, have kept windows and doors open more than usual, which has significantly increased our exposure to noise and pollution. This experience has underscored just how disruptive increased noise, traffic, and deliveries at all hours would be for our community.

Many residents share these concerns, and we are particularly worried about the potential effects on everyone's daily lives and mental well-being, especially during periods of extreme weather. The prospect of further increases in noise and pollution is deeply troubling for the entire community.

We respectfully request that this order be reconsidered, and we hope these concerns will be taken seriously for the well-being of all residents. Thank you for considering our perspective and for your ongoing engagement on this matter.

Yours sincerely,

Helen and Roy Batterby
